CONSERVATORY LAB
CHARTER SCHOOL

a public school for learning through music

From the Principal

Dear Parents,

Each year every school in the United States is measured by the No Child Left Behind law of Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP). If a school performs well, making progress, has good attendance and participation, they have made AYP.

Performance is based on the MCAS test.

If a school does not make AYP the school is considered "in need of improvement" or it could get worse and they could be taken over by the state. CLCS has been a school in need of improvement according to these rules.

Conservatory Lab made AYP last year (2006) for the first time in the school's history in both math and English.

In order to change status and be out of a needs improvement, or lower status we need to make AYP two consecutive years.

In 2007 we again made AYP!! We are improving and the last two years shows strong indications that we are on the right track. We are one of the very few schools in Boston to accomplish this.

I'm very proud of the staff for this great accomplishment, and I expect continued growth I the year to come.

I'll see you at OPEN HOUSE tomorrow (Sep 18).

Sincerely,

Mark Jacobson
